

MAP 2480 Biocalculus LAB details Spring 2010

I understand that the prerequisite for this class is a grade of C- or better in MAC 2311. I understand that part of my grade is a subjective evaluation on my attitude towards working problems.

I understand that the class has on-line prelabs which is due at 5pm on Mondays and the deadline is absolute. Even if the server dies, the internet melts and the world ends. The internet is everywhere, lack of internet access will not be believed. I understand that the homework appears at noon on Thursday. My prelabs are limited to five attempts.

I understand that the labs must be done in the classroom 107 MCH. Labs can be completed in one of the in-lab office hours; but have to be completed by 5pm on the next Monday and sometimes earlier. I understand there is a small penalty for doing the lab at a time different from my scheduled time and there are no excused absences from this penalty.

I understand that the participation projects have to be typed and turned in on time for full credit. And that late assignments may not be accepted at the instructors whim. I understand that I must regularly check my grades in the private gradebook and report any errors on a timely basis.

I understand that the on-line homework and the on-line labs use different grading modes. The on-line homework requires me to do all the problems before clicking grade; the on-line lab requires me to grade each problem as you go. I understand that prematurely clicking on the finish session button will require me to restart the lab from the beginning.

I understand that this class will expect me to know Calculus and for me to remember what I learned the week before.
